The Crusades

Byzantine Empire was under attack by Muslins in 1093 and Sought Help from

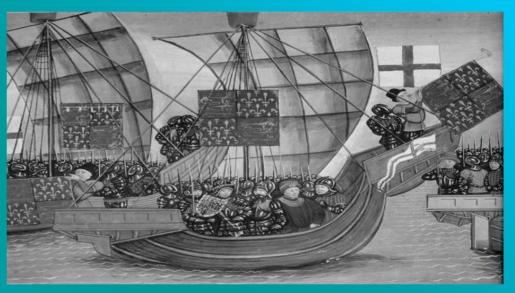

Western Europe

- Pope Urban II launched the Crusades in 1095
- He issued a call for a "Holy War" to gain control over the Holy Lands
- Pope Urban II hoped to unite the Roman and Byzantine churches

Goals of the Crusades Economic Factors

- Sought land from victories
- Merchants profited from financing and assisting the journeys
- Merchants sought to control the rich trade from the Middle East and India

Social Factors of the Crusades

- The Church and kings saw the Crusades as an opportunity to send quarreling knights on a common goal
- Pope Urban II had assured Crusaders of a place in heaven for their struggle
- Crusaders wore a red cloth cross across the front of their uniforms

Political Goals of the Crusades

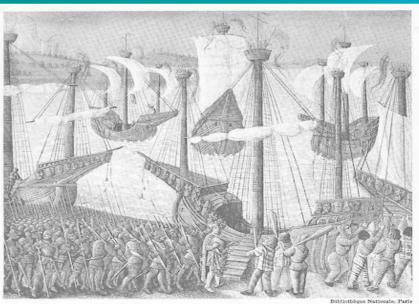

- Pope Urban II hoped to re-unite the church and gain prestige in doing so
- United different groups in conquests of the Holy Lands
- Conquest of land was also a reason for the lesser nobility to participate in the Crusades

Knights, Nobles and Merchants

- Nobles raised the armies for the Crusades and helped finance them
- Knights were loyal to their nobles and followed them into the Crusades
- Merchants helped finance, transport, and profit from their participation
- Merchants also hoped for access to the merchandise available in the Middle East

King Philip II of France is embarking from Genoa, Italy, with his men and ships for the Third Crusade (1189). Although this Crusade was not very successful, the crusaders did succeed in capturing Acre, but not Jerusalem. Note the weapons and armor of the crusaders.

Crusades

- First Crusade 1096 1099 successful in capturing Jerusalem and establishing a foothold in Palestine
- Second Crusade 1147 1149 organized to recapture Jerusalem ended in defeat
- Third Crusade 1189 1191 three powerful monarchs, Philip II of France, Frederick I of Germany, and Richard the Lion-hearted of England participated
- Richard fought the Muslin leader Saladin to a truce
- Terms left Jerusalem under Muslin control but Christian pilgrims would have safe passage
- Fourth Crusade never reached the Holy Land - looted and sacked the City of Constantinople
- Later four more unsuccessful Crusades
- Children's Crusade 1212, 30,000 children joined, most starved, died of diseases or were enslaved

Lasting Impact of Crusades

- Showed the power of the Church to summons a call to free the Holy Lands
- Merchants were able to expand trade that benefited both Christians and Muslims
- Failure of Crusades lessened the power of the pope
- Weakened the feudal nobility and increased the power of kings
- Huge fortunes were lost and the fall of Constantinople weakened the Byzantine Empire
- Left legacy of bitterness and hatred between Christians and Muslims
- Left a legacy of less religious tolerance both for Christians, Muslims and Jews
